18 Into the Light: Gloria Estefan

Though an accident nearly ended her career, Gloria Estefan returned to her hometown of Miami nine months later for triumphant concerts that kicked off her and The Miami Sound Machine's European Tour. Her remarkable comeback—and her life off-stage—is the subject of The Disney Channel's latest Going Home special.

22 Walt Disney World Celebrates 20 Years of Family Fun

On October 1, 1991, Walt Disney World Resort turned 20 years old. That date marked the beginning of a 15-month party filled with special events and new attractions and resorts. Here are 20 things you'll want to see during 1992.

A LETTER FROM THE STUDIO

Who among us hasn't enjoyed the thrill and magic of journeying to Wonderland...either through Lewis Carroll's classic Alice's Adventures in Wonderland or through various television adaptations, plays or movies, including the classic 1951 Disney animated feature.

Well, beginning in March, subscribers to The Disney Channel will be able to take a trip to Wonderland every weekday morning, thanks to a new, original Disney Channel series.

Joan Kreidler

The series is called Adventures in Wonderland and will feature Elizabeth Harnois, who you can see pictured with me. But Elizabeth will play a very different Alice. Instead of a 19th-century girl living in the English countryside, this Alice will be thoroughly modern and American.

Of course, everyday life can be quite confusing, for a girl growing up or a grownup. But whenever Alice finds herself perplexed, she simply has to step through her looking glass to visit her friends in Wonderland.

Sure enough, things get "curiouser and curiouser" as Alice finds herself in that enchanted land with such zany characters as the White Rabbit, the Mad Hatter and the Red Queen. Of course, their view of things is pretty wacky—and they're liable to act in hilarious and eccentric ways.

Adventures in Wonderland will be geared for younger children, to help teach them a wide range of language skills and to expand their vocabularies. What makes the series such a treat is the way it approaches its educational goals by looking at the world from a growing child's point of view. Moreover, with the imaginative settings, antic personalities and four original songs in each show, viewers of all ages can join in for the fun.

Adventures in Wonderland is part of our continuing effort to enhance The Disney Channel with fresh, original programming. Just as the new Mickey Mouse Club has become an enormous hit with preteens in the afternoon, we hope that Adventures in Wonderland will be a popular and educational show for their younger brothers and sisters in the morning.

So, please join us, beginning in March, when we will get to journey once again with Alice and enjoy all the fabulous wonders of Wonderland.

NEWS FROM AROUND THE WORLD OF DISNEY

Walt Disney Publishing HYPERION BOOKS

Walt Disney Publishing has launched a new line of books called Hyperion. Whereas other Disney publishing groups have traditionally concentrated on Disney-inspired book offerings, Hyperion publishes both fiction and non-fiction for the general reading public. (The name Hyperion is derived from Hyperion Avenue—the Los Angeles street in which the first Walt Disney Studio was located.) “Hyperion will take fresh approaches to traditional subjects, publish intelligent books on popular subjects, and seek out brilliant new fiction,” says Hyperion publisher Robert Miller.

Hyperion's first offerings include Larry Grobel's Conversations with Brando; Lou Reed's Between Thought and Expression: Selected Lyrics of Lou Reed; The Doors: The Complete Illustrated Lyrics; Matthew Jones's novel The Cooter Farm; a gift book, Amazing

Grace, which pairs John Newton's timeless hymn with black-and-white civil rights-era photographs (and with a forward by Judy Collins); 12 Steps, an illustrated gift book of 12 principles that have helped millions transform their lives; and A Poet's Bible: Rediscovering the Voices of the Original Text, by David Rosenberg. And there are two books that are Disney-related: Bob Thomas's Disney's Art of Animation: From Mickey Mouse to Beauty and the Beast and The Art of Mickey Mouse. The latter is a stunning book filled with artists'—from Andy Warhol to Keith Haring and Wayne Thiebaud—interpretations of Mickey Mouse.

Collectibles THE WALT DISNEY CLASSICS COLLECTION

Now, for the first time, The Walt Disney Studios has captured the world of Disney animation in a series of fine art sculptures so luminous with life, it's as if the characters froze in movement and stepped out of the silver screen.

Using the exacting principles that first brought Disney's finest characters to life, Disney artists have created figurines as compelling as their animated counterparts. These sculptures are uniquely designed to be enjoyed as individual character cameos or in groupings that recreate memorable film moments.

The beautiful figurines that compose The Walt Disney Classics Collection will be available exclusively through The Disney Stores, Disney Theme Parks, and selected fine gift and collector stores, beginning in the spring of 1992.

"Aye, Aye, Mates!"

"Justin"

It's a Saturday outing that his parents will always remember... "Justin's" very first day at the beach. He splashes his chubby feet in the cool water and plays in the sand. And just as Daddy taught him, he raises his right hand in a proud sailor's salute.

"Justin" is the very first issue in a delightful new collection of porcelain baby dolls by America's Foremost Dollmaker, Yolanda Bello.

There's so much to see and to do at the beach, and "Justin's" hand-set eyes twinkle with the excitement of it all! His hand-painted baby cheeks have the warm blush of being in the sunshine. And he's a real charmer in his classic, one-piece sailor suit and matching hat. "Justin" sits comfortably on his soft, satin blanket, no doubt having a great time with his hand-painted wooden sailboat.

Recommended by Ashton-Drake, "Justin" is certified Premiere Grade — your assurance of superior artistry and craftsmanship. As an heirloom-quality doll with exceptional credentials, he may be a wise investment as well.

Bring this handsome little sailor boy into your home for only $75.00. But hurry... "Justin" is issued in a hand-numbered edition ending forever in 1992, after which molds for this doll will be broken and no more porcelain will ever be cast. Order today.

Actual size is 9 inches, seated. Complete with toy sailboat and satin blanket.

The Magical World of Disney CLASSIC ADVENTURE

"Fifteen men on the Dead Man's Chest/Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum." Of all the film versions of Robert Louis Stevenson's Treasure Island, the finest remains Disney's 1950 adaptation, with Bobby Driscoll as Jim Hawkins and that incomparable ham Robert Newton as Long John Silver. ("Argh, matey, it be the Black Spot.") Treasure Island airs February 2 on The Magical World of Disney. (Sundays at 7:00 p.m.; all times listed in "Now Playing" are ET/PT.)

Another sterling adventure film airs on The Magical World in January. Tom Burlinson, Sigrid Thornton, and Brian Dennehy star in Return to Snowy River, the sequel to the acclaimed film The Man From Snowy River. Part horse opera and all romance, the film, set in Australia's Wild West days, airs January 19. Like its predecessor, Return to Snowy River contains beautiful and breathtaking scenes of wild horses running free.

The Best of Hollywood A DUKE SALUTE

In February, The Best of Hollywood (Mondays at 9:00 p.m.) presents a four-film fest featuring John Wayne. Wayne's heroic stature in American film was partly defined by his work with the great director John Ford—so it's fitting that the action begins on February 3 with Ford's 1949 Western She Wore a Yellow Ribbon. Along with Fort Apache, which co-stars Henry Fonda and airs February 10, She Wore a Yellow Ribbon is part of Ford's celebrated "Cavalry Trilogy," a nostalgic salute to the glory days of the U.S. Army on the

An Animation Celebration

WORLD TELEVISION PREMIERE: THE PRINCE AND THE PAUPER

On January 12, The Magical World of Disney presents the world television premiere of The Prince and the Pauper. This 23-minute featurette stars Mickey Mouse in his first big-screen role in nearly a decade. It's an adaptation of Mark Twain's novel about a poor boy—make that mouse—who trades places with his exact double, a moody and spoiled prince.

The Prince and the Pauper was directed by George Scribner, whose past credits include the Disney animated classic Oliver & Company. The featurette is reminiscent of Disney animation from the '30s and '40s. "We wanted the film to have an old world look that was very rounded, bold and three-dimensional," says Scribner. "Classic [Disney] featurettes like Brave Little Tailor and The Pointer inspired us with their rich watercolor style and the way the outer edges of the backgrounds were darkened to really focus in on the characters."

The Prince and the Pauper will air in tandem with the 1963 Disney animated classic The Sword in the Stone. It all kicks off The Disney Channel's Animation Celebration during 1992 on The Magical World of Disney. February 16 brings Alice in Wonderland, Disney's 1951 adaptation of Lewis Carroll.

rites of passage: WALT DISNEY PICTURES' SHIPWRECKED

Norwegian director Nils Gaup made his feature film debut in 1987 with The Pathfinder, a beautiful drama set among Norway's Laplanders. One might think the film's subject matter esoteric, but The Pathfinder won international acclaim—and brought Nils Gaup an Academy Award nomination for Best Foreign Film. Gaup's second film was a Hollywood affair: Walt Disney Pictures' Shipwrecked.

The film is based on a classic Norwegian novel, Hakon Hakonsen, published in 1873. The young Hakon—no longer a boy and not yet a man—is forced to go to sea to save his family's small farm from debts. Thus begins an adventure in which he meets a beautiful stowaway, confronts the treacherous pirate Merrick (parading as an English officer), and is marooned on a Pacific island. It's a full-blooded high seas adventure—and a voyage to self-discovery.

"This is not just a pirate film," observes Nils Gaup. "Although it's about a young boy who has to face some evil people, it's also the classic story of a young man's rite of passage. A boy is forced to leave home and he faces the biggest adventure of his life, with surprises that he never expected to find. And he becomes a man."

Child Development GETTING SMALL: WHY THE RABBIT HOLE INTRIGUES ALICE AND OTHERS

One of the most memorable scenes in Alice in Wonderland (airing February 16 on The Magical World of Disney) is the one in which Alice sips from a bottle labeled "Drink Me"—and shrinks. Once small, she enters an incredibly curious kingdom through a rabbit hole, and then, with great poise, copes with a bizarre set of circumstances and a group of utterly arbitrary adults.

The idea of changing perspective and seeing the world from a two-inch-or-so vantage point is common in children's literature, says Mae Durham Roger, a retired professor at the University of California, Berkeley. From E.B. White's Stuart Little to Rachel Field's Hitty, Her First One Hundred Years and Mary Norton's The Borrowers, there is a vast amount of children's literature that appeals to a child's fascination with the small. Even beyond literature, movies like Honey, I Shrunk the Kids play to that interest in getting small.

Why are children intrigued with changing scale? Experts in children's literature say there is a wide range of explanations. Roger says, "Children are keenly aware of how small and powerless they are and thus respond to stories in which tininess is important, especially if the smallness enables them to accomplish something important." Reading about small people who do great and amazing things helps children make the transition from feeling like little nobodies, which may be how they see themselves, to people of importance, Roger says.

This is, for example, why children like doll houses and toy cars. They can be in charge, taking control of the casting, the scripting and the production of the world

TALKING POINTS

The Disney animated classic Alice in Wonderland is a complex work, and there are many things parents can do to enhance their children's enjoyment of it:

1. Pull out the originals—Lewis Carroll's Alice Adventures in Wonderland and Through the Looking-Glass—and read them to your children. For the younger kids, read some of the poems, and find little sections that are fun to listen to.
2. Ask your children how they might feel about getting bigger or smaller; what it would be like to be able to go down a rabbit hole; what they'd imagine seeing if they could get small and experience a whole new world.
3. Explain why Alice in Wonderland is a fantasy; discuss how we know this is a make-believe story. What are the clues that convince us the story is fiction?
4. Encourage your children to draw a favorite scene, or act out a part of the movie or story they enjoyed.
5. Consider what an Alice of the '90s would be like. Ask your older children to update Alice. What would she be wearing? Where would she go?

Adventures in Wonderland, The Disney Channel's new series that uses music and fantasy to teach vocabulary and language skills, premieres in March.

they design. They can create challenging—even scary—situations and then have their unique characters respond as they wish. Even many adults are interested in collecting miniatures.

Myra Cohn Livingston, a children's author and poet, says she remembers fantasizing about being small as a child and now, at 65, still has dreams about it. "We forget children are small," she says, "and they see the world from an entirely different perspective."

Some would-be children's illustrators are taught actually to get down on their hands and knees to see the world as a child does, says Susan Goldman Rubin, a children's author and illustrator and teacher in the UCLA Writer's Program. "Children are small in a world of big people, and things really do look different down there."

Part of what happens when the scale changes, says Goldman Rubin is that the rules change too. "Maybe the rabbit hole lets things happen that would be impossible above ground. It's a place rooted in reality, a place we've never been and yet we know it's there."

Goldman Rubin says getting small—changing perspective—also helps children deal with their fear of change. "Children are very afraid of changing and getting bigger, even though they long to grow up," she says. Alice changes size and successfully adapts, which may help make change more palatable to those who observe her.

Life in the '90s is full of change, some say so much so that many children are getting cheated out of a childhood full of slow-paced, imagination-based play. In Alice in Wonderland, Alice gets to return to being a little girl in a manageable world. Perhaps children are intrigued with small things—matchboxes as little beds to toy cars that traverse giant blanket mountains—because such play allows them to better understand the big world they are about to enter.

Kids in The Kitchen SWEET HEARTS

The little red cinnamon candies, bought in the bake section of a supermarket, are easy for small children to use in decorating ordinary cookies, turning them into spicy valentines for special friends.

Start by using your favorite recipe for sugar cookies, and cut out cookies with a heart-shaped cookie cutter. Instead of sprinkling with sugar, you will decorate with the bright red candies. If you haven't a recipe, the one below is simple enough for school-age kids to follow.

When the heart-shaped cookies are on the cookie sheet, ready for baking, gently push the candies into the dough for a Valentine-red decoration.

Cookie recipe

½ cup margarine	1 ½ cups flour, unsifted
1 cup sugar	a heart-shaped cookie cutter
1 egg	a lightly greased cookie sheet
1 teaspoon vanilla	preheated oven (375 degrees)

1. When margarine is soft and room temperature, beat in the sugar by spoonfuls. Use a bowl that is large enough to hold the flour as well. All of the ingredients are mixed in this bowl.
2. Beat the egg with a fork in a separate small dish and add it to the sugar and margarine mixture. Beat until creamy. Beat in the vanilla.
3. Finally, slowly beat in the flour in quarter-cup amounts. When all of the flour is mixed in, the dough will pull away from the sides of the bowl. You'll be able to form it into a large ball. If it's too sticky, work small amounts of flour into the dough with your hands until it feels smooth and easy to roll out.
4. Lightly flour the rolling surface, rub flour on the rolling pin, and then roll out the dough into a thin layer.
5. Cut out hearts, using a cookie cutter, and with a spatula lift each one on to the greased cookie sheet.
6. Decorate with cinnamon candies.
7. Bake the cookies for 7 to 10 minutes. They should be a gold color on top and browned on the bottom.
8. Let cookies cool for just a minute, and with the spatula, transfer them to waxed paper or a plate until they are thoroughly cool. If the cookies stay on the baking sheet too long, they stick.

TINY PEDESTRIANS AT GREATEST RISK

Toddlers are more likely to be injured in nontraffic accidents than are any other age group, according to a recent study in Pediatrics, the journal of the American Academy of Pediatrics. The study also found that a high proportion of toddler injuries happened in residential driveways, caused by vehicles backing up. Frequently the toddlers were without adult supervision at the time of injury. The researchers recommend that parents supervise children more closely, separate the child from vehicle areas by redesigning driveways so they are circular, fence front yards and install devices on vehicles to warn or detect out-of-sight objects and people. Preschoolers should not be allowed to play alone or with other children in or near traffic areas and should not be allowed to play in driveways or in adjacent unfenced front yards.

VACCINATIONS AND COLDS

A new study shows that infants who receive a measles-mumps-rubella (MMR) shot when they have a cold might not be as well protected from measles as are healthy children, according to a recent report in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Twenty-one percent of the infants with colds failed to develop the measles antibody, essential for protection from measles. It's possible, said the researchers, that colds prevent normal antibody response to the measles vaccination. The American Academy of Pediatrics and the U.S. Public Health Service still recommend, however, that parents have their children immunized on schedule: It is usually given at 15 months of age.

Health & Fitness WINTER WEATHERPROOFING

Winter brings more colds and flu and certain safety risks to everyone. The trick is to practice prevention. According to Gary Krieger, M.D., a Los Angeles-area pediatrician, the key to being to prevent chapping. And the Academy also warns that children should not play outside if the temperature is -20 degrees or below.

Even with precautions, children will catch colds and flu, and Krieger warns parents to keep tabs on what's going around in the classroom or day care center. Avoid contagious individuals. "By the same token, parents should keep their children home when they are sick," he adds.

As for the adults, Krieger points out that parents often catch their children's colds or flu. "The first step is to realize that your children are contagious to you." He suggests family members wash their hands after every contact with a sick child, and keep dishes separate and bathrooms scrupulously clean.

As for treatment, acetaminophen and liquids are a good first approach for children and adults, but Krieger warns that if a fever persists beyond two days, parents should call the child's health provider. Parents should also be on the lookout for signs of secondary infection, such as earache, sore throat, greenish or foul-smelling mucus, shortness of breath and weakness. These may signal infections that could require antibiotics. Children with severe vomiting or diarrhea should be seen by a health care provider because they can easily become dehydrated.

—B.B.G.

prepared is mostly common sense: you've got to check the weather reports and not assume tomorrow will be a repeat of today. "You can have phenomenal temperature swings," Krieger points out. "It's essential that kids are dressed appropriately."

Parents also need to prepare the family for trips to colder climates. Krieger recommends dressing in layers, bringing gloves and hats, applying sunscreen with an SPF of 15, and checking a garment's labels for information on the temperature range it was designed for.

The American Academy of Pediatrics also recommends that children wear wool in cold weather because it will keep them warmer and dryer, and that they wear scarves to cover their noses and necks. The Academy also suggests that children wear boots while sledding and playing in the snow because toes are more prone to frostbite than other body parts. Petroleum jelly should be applied to any moist areas of a child's face

PRESERVING GREAT ART

They're all precious, but sometimes the paintings and drawings children bring home from school seem especially memorable—and worth preserving. Specialists in art conservation suggest parents put acid-free, buffered tissue between each piece and store the art in acid-free folders or boxes. They also recommend that the artwork be kept away from tape, plastic wrap and light, which causes fading from high temperature or humidity.

TIPS FOR WINTER SPORTS SAFETY

The right clothes, simple safety rules, safe equipment—these are the basics for winter sport safety:

Ice Skating: Make sure the skates fit well; 20 percent of skating injuries occur in the ankle. If skating outdoors, call the local park district to make sure the ice is thick enough and the rink is supervised.

Ice Hockey: Collisions are the most common cause of injuries. Make sure your child plays with others matched by size and maturation level.

Sledding and Tobogganing: Select areas that are free of obstacles and with room for a child to stop safely. Make sure the sled has secure handholds. Remind children to move off the slope quickly when they reach the bottom, and not to sled down slopes ending in a roadway.

Skiing: Choose equipment that is right for the child's size, weight, level of ability, skiing style and the terrain. Ski bindings are important: make sure they have upward toe releases, side-to-side toe releases and upward releases at the heel. Get ski poles with breakaway straps or molded plastic strapless grips. Make sure children stick to beginner trails until they are ready to advance.

Child development THE VALUE OF ONE

When you consider that the cost of raising a single child is approaching a quarter of a million dollars B.C. (Before College), it's surprising that brothers and sisters haven't become an endangered species. One reason they haven't is the common belief that growing up without sisters or brothers puts a child at a serious disadvantage. "Only children are supposed to be lonely, maladjusted, and selfish," according to Ellie McGrath, author of My One and Only: The Special Experience of the Only Child. "They are believed to be the spoiled brats who throw fits if they can't get their own way. Or the Superchild who can do trigonometry before he can drive a car. Or the shrinking violet who is tied to Mama's (or Daddy's) apron strings."

Despite the poor opinion most Americans have of only children, we're now giving more consideration to the idea. The spiraling cost of raising children is only one reason a growing proportion of couples have one child. Another reason is that as couples marry later and postpone starting families, they may only be able to have a single child.

Whatever the causes, this "sib-size revolution," as UCLA researcher Judith Blake calls the trend toward families of one or two children, has some important effects, many of which are positive. Besides developing an unusually close relationship with one or both parents, only children tend to have higher I.Q.s than children from larger families.

The main disadvantage of being an only child is that living with sisters and brothers provides practice in the give and take of interpersonal relations. Then, too, there are studies showing that ties to siblings become more important as people age.

Only children often compensate for this lack, however, by investing a great deal in their friends. "Close friendships are the only child's insurance against isolation," McGrath notes, quoting one woman in her early 50s who observes, "I think we only children try to make sisters out of everybody. There may be a tendency to want, not necessarily more friends, but a more intimate relationship with those you do call friends."

There are no final answers for parents trying to decide whether to have another child. But it's a comfort at least to know that being an only child has its own distinct advantages. Parents need not feel guilty for choosing one child over many children.

Reading is fun for Sarah—as it should be for every child. At age four-and-a-half, she's already choosing her own books at the San Diego, Cal. library.

She reads books many third graders find "hard going." Yet she won't enter first grade for another year.

Sarah is typical of thousands of children who learned to read with "Listen and Learn with Phonics"—a reading kit that actually makes reading fun.

"Listen and Learn with Phonics" was developed by a reading expert. It has been endorsed, after extensive testing, by teachers, schools, and educators.

This practical (and inexpensive) home-learning kit fascinates eager young minds from three to ten. The child hears the letters or sounds on a cassette, sees them in a book and then repeats them. This makes an absorbing game of better reading — with amazing results.

For example: Slow or average readers show sudden—often spectacular—improvement in reading and spelling. Older children often advance their reading skills several years beyond their age level. Young "pre-schoolers" actually teach themselves to read by this simple but startlingly effective method.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

I am tremendously pleased. My 5-year old is reading very well and I plan to begin with my 4-year old. I am so glad I invested in this set. Judy I. Gay, Stow, Oh.

Last year I taught grades 1-4. I had a 6-year old boy who came to 1st grade reading 6th-grade words. His father had taught him at home using your set. The father donated the set to our school. I was thrilled because some of the children need a lot of extra help with reading and phonics.

What a happy Grandma I am! Since I ordered a Phonics set and had it mailed to my granddaughter, Kim, and her 6-year old sister, they are both making A's in school. Mrs. Clarence Sparks, Clearwater, FL.

as a celebration, and I wanted to do everything
I've always wanted to do on stage."

For two weekends in March, 1991, the city of Miami celebrated. Gloria Estefan was returning to the stage for the first time in almost a year, after an accident that could have ended her career. Friends and fans filled the Miami Arena to welcome her home and launch her and The Miami Sound Machine's "Into the Light" tour of Europe.

Fortunately, the cameras were rolling. Gloria Estefan: Going Home presents an intimate portrait of the artist behind the music, combining concert footage with glimpses backstage, exclusive interviews, and moments at home with Gloria and her husband, Miami Sound Machine leader Emilio Estefan.

When Gloria Estefan first takes the stage to a cheering home town crowd, watch her face. You see real emotion there, and you hear it in the crowd's ovation. Of that first night Gloria says, "It was a blur. There was such a euphoric feeling that it went by in two seconds. It was a special night, a feeling of unity most definitely. I was looking forward to performing because I knew there was a lot of speculation about how well I could move. I was sure I would be OK."

The live concert footage leaves no doubt about her recovery—you'd certainly never guess that the singer who is dancing all over the stage has two small metal rods in her back. From the opening numbers in Miami to footage from concert halls throughout Europe, Gloria Estefan: Going Home proves that she is as full of enthusiasm and energy as ever.

Nearly everybody in The Miami Sound Machine dances, with or without instruments, and no one is more active than Gloria. "To me it was a celebration, and I wanted to do everything I've always wanted to do on stage. We have wonderful lights, and projections, and for the first time we had background vocalists and dancers. Our choreographer, Liz Imperio, did a huge call in Hollywood—from 250 dancers she chose four great ones. The show was a lot of fun for me."

But fun can be hard work, and the Going Home special looks behind the scenes at the long hours spent preparing such a complex show, the largest in The Miami Sound Machine's history. First the band rehearsed the songs and choreography for two months; then came the technical rehearsals, weeks of them, to coordinate the computerized light show and chase all the bugs out of several tons of sound gear. All this was under the direction of Gloria's husband, Emilio Estefan. From the earliest days he has led the band, produced the albums, and arranged the tours.

It is no surprise that Emilio is also one of the producers of the Going Home special, and one of his goals is to make it, well, special: "This was a very emotional show, because of Gloria's coming back. This is the first time we've shown our home life and the way we live, which we wanted to share with our fans."

Gloria says that she wrote some of the songs for the band's latest album, Into The Light, while she was recuperating. "Everything that you live becomes a part of your music, somehow. This album is different,

Gloria Estefan shows she's as full of energy and enthusiasm as ever.

because everybody knows what happened to me. It's more personal. Some songs are very obvious, like 'Coming Out Of The Dark,' which was related to the accident, and was really about people's support. The fans really helped me through this, and said a lot of prayers for me."

When Gloria sings, at the end of the Miami concert, "Forever, forever, I'll stand on the rock of your love," she sings it to the audience. You can see that she is singing about the support she has received from her fans, that the song has meaning for everyone in the arena that night, right in that moment. Gloria Estefan and The Miami Sound Machine know they can go home, again and again.

20

With people and with places, certain dates stand as major landmarks, and October 1, 1991, when Walt Disney World turned 20, was one such date. Two decades have passed since Roy O. Disney dedicated the park, fulfilling his brother Walt's last dream. A whole generation of Americans has grown to adulthood, little realizing that what today is the world's premiere family resort was once a patch of undeveloped Florida woodland.

But while landmark anniversaries are a time for looking back, they are also a time for celebration. And October 1, 1991, marked the beginning of a 15-month long party. Call it a Bi-Tencennial; call it a Twin-tennial, Walt Disney World is roaring into its 20s with a pageant of color and spectacle and surprises that stretches from The Magic Kingdom to EPCOT Center. So as we celebrate 20 years of family fun, here are 20 surprises in store for you at The Walt Disney World Resort.

1 Surprise Celebration Parade

It's the biggest parade in Walt Disney World history as larger-than-life Disney characters bring the world's best-loved street parties to Main Street U.S.A. in The Magic Kingdom. Mickey, Minnie, Donald, Pluto and Goofy appear as giant cold-air balloons.

2 Meet Walt Disney World's Youngest Cast Member

The Living Seas at EPCOT Center introduces guests to the wonders of the underwater world—and there's been a new addition. This past September, Lorilei, the West Indian manatee, gave birth to a son—a healthy 71-lb. calf.

3 Surprise in the Skies

Fireworks explode as boats race and planes, kites, parapanes, hang gliders and giant balloons soar in the sky. It's Surprise in the Sky at World Showcase in EPCOT Center, the world's largest daytime fireworks display.

4 The Disney Vacation Club

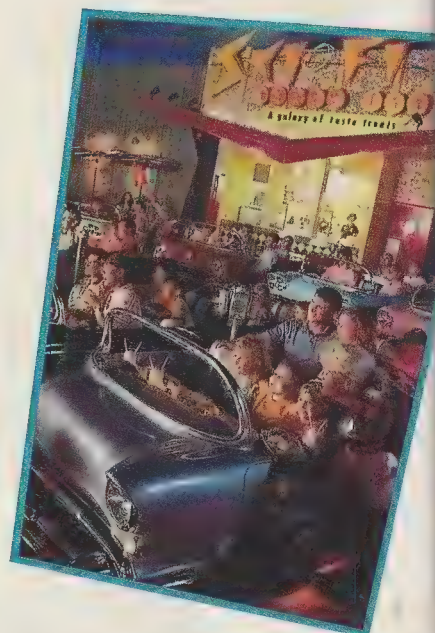

This innovation in family vacationing just opened this past December, overlooking the beautiful fairways and grounds of the Lake Buena Vista Golf Course.

5 Disney's Port Orleans Resort

Connected by a winding road and a waterway to Disney's Dixie Landings Resort, this moderately priced resort is inspired by the row houses found in New Orleans' picturesque French Quarter. The dining at Disney's Port Orleans Resort features spicy treats of Creole and Cajun cuisine.

6 Sorcery in the Sky

Celebrate 70 years of Hollywood cinematic magic at The Disney-MGM Studios. Mickey Mouse as the Sorcerer's Apprentice from Fantasia appears above the Chinese Theatre to direct a fireworks display celebrating Hollywood, along with music performed by the Paris Symphony.

7 Sci-Fi Diner

Dining will never be the same after you've visited this 250-seat restaurant set on a soundstage at The Disney-MGM Studios—a restaurant that re-creates a '50s drive-in theater smack in the Hollywood Hills. Not only are there great drive-in food favorites, but clips from classic sci-fi flicks as well.

8 Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles

Cowabunga, dudes! The mutant turtles come up from their sewers and are to be found in their very own show every day on the backlot at The Disney-MGM Studios Theme Park.

9 Disney's Yacht and Beach Club Resorts

New resort destinations are to be found during Walt Disney World's 20th anniversary celebration. Just steps from EPCOT Center, you'll find Disney's Yacht and Beach Club Resorts. Grand, turn-of-the-century summer homes are recalled in two luxury hotels—and there's also Stormalong Bay, a 2½-acre water resort completing the Nantucket fantasy.

10 Beauty and The Beast

It's the smash film of the year—and now Walt Disney Pictures' 30th animated classic Beauty and the Beast is coming to The Disney-MGM Studios as a stellar stage show.

11 Disney's Dixie Landings Resort

Recapture the romance of life on the Mississippi in this new, moderately priced 2,048-room resort, replete with stately plantation-style mansions and rustic bayou dwellings.

12 The Little Mermaid

In January a new live stage show opens in The Disney-MGM Studios—The Little Mermaid. It's a multi-sensory event, a "music video" that combines lasers, video, film and live characters based on the acclaimed animated triumph from The Walt Disney Studios.

13 Minnie Moo at Grandma Duck's Farm

In Mickey's Starland in The Magic Kingdom, meet our "moosketeer"—Minnie Moo, a black-and-white cow who bares black mouse ears on her sheeny white side.

14 Dinosaurs Live

Mesozoic madness reigns supreme daily at The Disney-MGM Studios as Earl Sinclair and his fossil fuel family from the prime-time series Dinosaurs appear as "guests of extinction" in a delightful stage show.

15 SpectroMagic

Nighttime in The Magic Kingdom is a special time, and now with SpectroMagic night becomes a colorful pageant of fantasy, music, wonder and dreams. State of the art technology synchronizes lights, music and mechanical animation into an awesome evening show—it's the biggest nighttime attraction ever featured in The Magic Kingdom.

16 Jim Henson's Muppet*Vision 3D

The weather at 12:03 a.m. on cable.

This is the television of individual time and choice, rather than a predetermined menu for the masses.

Cable is the weather when you want to know it. The news when you want to watch it. It is the source of intelligent documentaries all but abandoned by broadcast networks. Of sports from faraway cities. Of meetings in your hometown. Of children's programming that isn't just cartoons. Of movies that aren't filled with commercials.

An average of 35 channels—35 choices—for about 65 cents a day. That's the value of cable at 12:03 a.m. And every minute of the day.

Cable contributes to life.

A Party for Sarah

Her big day has finally arrived! As you can see, Sarah has been waiting a long time for this special day...the gleam of anticipation is in her pretty blue eyes. It's not every day that a girl celebrates her 6th birthday.

This cherished memory has been captured forever in fine bisque porcelain by artist Patricia Rose, a 1991 nominee of Dolls Award of Excellence. Her dolls are sought by collectors worldwide because of their fine features and life-like qualities...like those found in Sarah.

❖ Handcrafted with exceptional care.

Experienced dollmakers bring Sarah to life. Her hand-set blue eyes are enhanced with genuine lashes. Her lips, rosy cheeks, eyebrows, even her fingernails are meticulously handpainted.

❖ All dressed up from head to toe, she's party perfect.

Since Sarah is a big girl now, her mother let her pick out her own dress. It's trimmed with lace and satiny ribbon, and there are little pearl beads around her neck just like Mommy wears! Sarah even found shoes with rosettes, ribbons and pearls to match. And, how pretty she looks with her hair up in braids, adorned with ribbons and flowers.

❖ A limited first-edition at an incredible value!

Sarah is a premier edition, porcelain collector doll available exclusively through Paradise Galleries' Treasury Collection™. To introduce you to this extraordinary collection, we're making Sarah available for an amazingly low price. Sarah is an excellent way to commemorate a birthday or other occasion, whether for yourself or someone special.

Sarah will be crafted in an edition limited to 100 firing days. Your doll will bear the artist's signature and be individually numbered with a corresponding Certificate of Authenticity. A doll of this quality is rarely seen at such a low price, making Sarah a great investment for today...and a treasured keepsake for the future. So, act promptly to ensure your order. Complete the Commission Reservation card below and mail it today.

Shown smaller than actual size, Sarah is approximately 13½" tall and comes complete with present and display stand.

"Baby Seals"

In full color on fine china
Shown smaller than actual diameter of 8½ inches

1991 The Collector's Treasury
1991 Royal Grafton China

Precious... irresistibly cuddly... a Bradford Exchange recommendation

Roly-poly balls of snowy fur...enormous, soulful eyes...droopy black whiskers...harp seal pups are irresistible. Here they frolic and cuddle on the icy arctic rookery where they were born just days ago.

Artist Mike Jackson captures all the beauty and charm of these wildlife babies in a fine bone china collector's plate. And, like exceptional plates that command hundreds of dollars on the plate market, "Baby Seals" appears to have what it takes to go up in value once the edition closes.

Not every plate goes up in value; some go down. But the edition of "Baby Seals" is strictly limited to a maximum of 150 firing days, and demand is expected to be strong. So, if you wish to obtain this plate at the $27.50 issue price, the time to act is now. To order your plate — fully backed by our 365-day unconditional guarantee — send no money now, simply complete and mail the coupon at right.
